Where Will Ex-Kaiser Go Next, is Question

Dutch opinion refuses to be greatly disturbed over the fate of the kaiser. It is generally believed that when he leaves Amsterdam it will be to enter allied custody. The movements in Germany for his restoration to the throne are not taken seriously. (The kaiser abdicated Nov. 9, 1918—Lloyd's New World Atlas), and a thousand other facts and over 50 beautiful new maps in colors. This atlas will be distributed through the newsdealers in Janesville and vicinity for a short time only. Ask your newsdealer to show it to you and you will quickly give him 25 cents for a copy.

Appleton.—A Consumers' Protective league is being organized here by 25 people to combat the high cost of living. Articles of incorporation are being drawn, but the names will not be given out until the articles are filed. The organization, it is said, will engage a man to keep track of the prices in the various stores, ascertain any variation in prices, look into the reason for the differences and place merchants who are profiteering on the unfair list. If this plan fails then a cooperative store will be started, it is claimed. It is also planned to charter a boat to bring wood and coal to that city. A membership fee of $1 is proposed.

NEW YORK IS DRY BUT HAS ITS OASIS; LIGHT WINES FLOW

It's a great success—they think they are getting the real thing. Perhaps the wettest section of the city is Greenwich Village. The cafes in this section are still serving "red ink." It is supposed to be diluted to 2.75 percent, but it is to be feared the edge is very strong. Some of them are also doing a rushing business in Scotch and rye, keeping open after the usual closing hours. Some of them are dispensing of these drinks in a carried on in a frank and straightforward manner, although the bartenders give each newcomer a careful sizing up before serving. In others "cherry" is obtainable only by speaking the proper password, which has to be the name of an influential friend.

A bartender had just finished serving a young man a glass of Scotch in one of these bars the other evening, when an older man came in. Can I get one of those? asked the stranger, looking through the swinging door. "Sorry," said the bartender, "but that young man was drinking his own stuff. He bought a large supply over at my place and left it with us, to be served to him whenever he wanted it."

Spy Caught Him.
"I see, if I leave some whisky here you will serve it to me?"
"I did not say that what I served the young man was whisky," quickly interposed the bartender. "I don't know what it is—it is simply something he left with us."

As soon as the stranger departed, the bartender turned excitedly to his assistant. "That was a spy," he said. "We've got to be more careful." In some of the uptown cafes the serving of drinks is done only in an extremely secret manner. The other day a middle western buyer arrived in New York City and stayed at the prospect of a month of dry life in a town where he had formerly had such an enjoyable time. He took a seat in his favorite restaurant and, looking at the waiter, which even the hearty greeting of the waiter failed to dispel.

"Don't suppose I can get one of those cocktails you used to fix, could I?"

"Fraid not, sir," said the waiter. However, a few minutes later, the buyer was summoned to a telephone booth, where he found a cocktail waiting on the shelf.

While the old-timers are still undoubtedly obtaining as much booze as they want, it cannot be denied that the drought is gradually taking effect. It is true that so far, just as many irresponsible inebriates as ever may be seen on Broadway. The other morning three were noticed on one block of the city's highway and reported the usual number of delirium tremens cases; the psychopathic ward of one hospital even reports an increase in the number of alcoholic patients. But of late year, and the cases in the domestic relations, court have "not shown a falling off."

Savings Not Increased.

According to one investigator, the savings banks have also failed to notice any increase in the accounts of working men and women, which increase it was expected, would immediately follow prohibition. All these things are explained by the fact that New York is not yet wholly dry. As Magistrate Morris Koenig of the domestic relations court, said a few days ago:

"It is too soon to tell whether the number of cases of domestic trouble caused by drinking is falling off, for men are still drinking and the cases are being run into this court." On the other hand, there are those who claim that the effects of prohibition are already distinctly noticeable. According to the manager of a large and formerly rather sporty hotel, there has been a tremendous increase in the number of family dinner parties since July 1.

The man who used to call up his wife and explain that he wouldn't be home for dinner because he had a business engagement, is now calling her up and asking her to come down and have dinner with him. We have recently had to increase the number of our tables for married couples." From the theaters, and from the cabarets, also comes a loud wail that prohibition is ruining business. Of course the theaters are always complaining that something is affecting their patronage, but it is unusual for the cabarets to complain. And as evidence of their contention, they point to the large number of cabaret girls who have recently stampeded to the various vaudeville circuits. Yet, the girls and the movies seem to be about the only indoor amusements which thrive on ice cream soda.

H. C. L. TO BE TAKEN UP BY GOVERNORS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Aug. 12.—The governors' conference, which will be attended by upwards of 40 executives, meeting at Salt Lake City, August 18-24, will tackle the high cost of living problem. The announcement of this change in program has resulted in additional governors notifying Sec. Miles C. Riley, Madison, that they will be in attendance. Gov. Emerson C. Harrington of Maryland, in the presence of federal government, appear at the conference to discuss the high cost of living program.

Gov. Harrington wired Tuesday that he would be able to secure a representative. The following telegram was received Monday, today.
"Will any part of the program of the governors' conference be devoted to a discussion of possible methods of reducing the high cost of living?"
Henry J. Allen, Kansas, has wired that he desired the high cost of living question to be discussed at the conference. E. C. Caffery, of Missouri, has wired that a never-ending cost of living has brought about an acute crisis which he desires to have discussed at the governors' conference.

The announcements of plans will be made to fully take up the cost of living plan and the consideration of means in which states may combat the soaring prices by bringing their governors to attend the conference.

COUNTY FAIRS TO BE UNDER HEALTH RULES

Madison, Aug. 12.—Every county fair in the state will be brought under strict surveillance this year by state authorities to insure compliance with health regulations enforced by the state board of health. No lunch stand or similar concession may expect any favors in the matter of violations of state rules governing sale of food, disposal of garbage, etc., officials declare.

County fair managements must comply with suggestions for maintenance of sanitary toilet facilities throughout the fair week. No fair will be allowed to tolerate indecent shows or exhibitions, or games of chance.

Every lunch stand must keep garbage in covered cans, to be emptied at proper intervals. Food must be kept covered. To prevent putrefaction meats and other perishable food supplies must be kept on ice, or some other acceptable method of refrigeration used. All foods must be wholesome and served in a cleanly manner.

Every fair must be guarded against every reasonable way. The first of the fairs was held last week and the season will continue until October. A radical improvement in the sanitary management of the fair concessions and toilets has followed inspection at fairs inaugurated in 1913 by the state hotel and restaurant inspectors.

MERCHANTS WARNED OF WOMAN FORGER

Acting Chief of Police Thomas Morrissey issued a warning to local merchants today against a woman forger who has been operating in Milwaukee and northern Wisconsin for the past two weeks. Chief Morrissey received word yesterday to watch for the woman who uses the name of Ellen Parker alias Florence Wilson.

According to the information received by Chief Morrissey the woman will present checks at department stores for small amounts and tell the manager she can be identified by the bank. The woman will be identified by the bank as she manages to have a small checking account.

Later when the bank is closed she will return to the store and present a check for substantial sum. Being handed they are going to be identified by the bank as she manages to have a small checking account.

Like hot cakes or waffles? Great stuff for breakfast at the Cafeteria.

POLICE ON TRAIL OF BICYCLE THEFTS

"The stealing of bicycles in Janesville must stop at once, and if the persons connected with the numerous thefts in the past two weeks are apprehended they are going to be dealt with severely." Acting Chief of Police Thomas Morrissey said.

Chief Morrissey claims that the taking of bicycles from the downtown streets has become a habit during the past few weeks and more complaints from persons losing bicycles are being received each day.

Chief Morrissey also issued a warning against youngsters riding bicycles on sidewalks. Several complaints of the practice have been received at the police station during the past week.

NO RECORD HERE OF DR. ALDERSON

Despite the continued assertions of Dr. C. W. Alderson, who is being held at Macomb, Ill., charged with murder, no record of his being a practicing physician in Janesville can be located. Dr. Alderson and Mrs. Lawrence Clugston were arrested charged with murder shortly after Mrs. Clugston's husband died, supposedly from typhoid fever.

In every interview with police officers and attorneys, Dr. Alderson claims that he practiced medicine in Janesville in 1915. A complete search of the records in this city have been made and no record of the man can be found.

LITHUANIAN EXHIBITS DISPLAY NEW ARTS

New York art critics have focused attention on the recent examples of modern painting that Lithuania has shown at its annual exhibits in Vilnius, Lithuania. This small Baltic nation which is seeking to have its independence acknowledged by the world, has developed a new school of art which is peculiar and refreshing in its poignant nationalism.

One of the first and principal influences of the modern art movement in Lithuania was Antoine Zemaitis who, fresh from the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris, where he studied from 1904 to 1907, took the initiative in founding a Society of Arts in Vilnius upon his return there. The start was a favorable one, such artists as P. Rimas, Clurionone, Stabauskas, Joras, Zikaras, Ulenas, Aleksandravicius, aiding Zemaitis without ulterior motive and without the hope of reward.

The first exposition of the Lithuanian Beaux Arts was soon organized and met with great success, 114 artists participating. It outgrew its original quarters and was transferred to Knautskas, where it was repeated. Since then expositions have been an annual event in Lithuania.

Besides Zemaitis the distinguished Lithuanian artists Varnas and Varnas, the last named, Varnas, is the exquisite landscape painter who renders with such beautiful fidelity and simplicity the fields, the Lithuanian sky and the Lithuanian birch-trees in the Autumn.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

THOUGHTS OF SUMMER.

Long ago, another year, the summer was here. I was much too small to know how the summer came to go! But the next time I shall see the first leaf on any tree.

The first warm that's in the air, I shall feel when it is there. I shall know the very minute when the world has summer in it! —Josephine Van Dolzen Pease.

STEPHEN LUZANNE OF LE MATIN.

A prominent Paris editor says the United States is short-sighted, but it was a good thing for Paris, including this editor, that we were not so short of cash, courage and conviction. And if we remember the words of our greatest writer, our right—well, it was pretty fair.

An actress in the average musical show has a good chance to see most of the country and the country has a good chance to see most of the actresses.

At a picnic of the Good Husbands' club one of the members shot his wife. The problem of finding out just what a good husband is has been experimented upon by every club sister in the country through married life stories, but the mystery seems to be growing deeper and deeper.

THE SECRET OF LONG LIFE IS TO READ THIS VOLUME EVERY DAY.

Dear Roy—I was on my way to the river to throw myself into its enveloping tide, when I stopped and bought a copy of the book you have written. It saved my life. It gave me hope. I went back home and started life afresh, and since that day I have made 147,000. —Grateful.

Dear Roy—I am 97. Two years ago the doctors gave me up. Then, upon the advice of a friend, I began reading your volume. Today I feel like a man again. —How can B. D.

Dear Roy: I understand a movement is being inaugurated by a number of prominent se-soaks throughout the country to make Memorial day June 30 in memory of the departed spirits. —BOBBY SPEC.

Chicago Grain Review. Chicago, Aug. 12.—Bullish sentiment continued to dominate the corn market today except as to the September delivery. Anxiety of shorts in that month as to the nearness of arrivals gave a decided upturn to September. On the other hand, railroad labor difficulties and developments in the movement to combat the high cost of living had a weakening influence on prices for December and May deliveries. Opening quotations, which ranged from the same as yesterday's finish to 1/2 cent lower, including September 1.30 1/2 to 1.31, and December 1.52 to 1.53, were followed by advances for September and for feeble rallies in the new crop months.

Scattered buying made the oats market comparatively firm. After opening at 14 1/2 to 14 3/4, including September at 14 1/2 to 14 3/4, the market sagged a little and then rose to above yesterday's finish.

There was virtually no business in provisions. Sharply higher quotations on hogs discouraged buyers and made sellers extremely cautious.

HIGH COSTS AND REMEDIES.

The problem of reducing the high cost of living is one of labyrinthine complications and difficulties. Indeed, a high order of ability, and determination of a persistent quality are requisite in public officials who are charged with securing relief. Patience and fairness must be the contribution of the rest of us.

Profiteering in clothing, food, and shoes must be checked first. Inordinate profits taking in times like these must be regarded as criminal. The spirit of "Oh, well, the people have plenty of money and will pay extra prices rather than appear cheap," must be torn up by the roots.

The federal trade commission tells us that the big packers have been getting a strangle hold on the production and sale of meat and more food products, and that by monopolistic practices they have made huge profits.
The packers are to be prosecuted.
Very well.

We read that foreign demand for shoes and leather goods has run up prices and encouraged exorbitant profit-taking. Shoes that cost $6 to $8 not long ago now sell for $15, and we are to be "educated" to the point where we will stand at $25. We shall see about that.

The world's average price for wheat is $2.46 a bushel. American farmers are guaranteed $2.26 a bushel. Wheat is high because of a tremendous shortage. Bolshevism has well-nigh excluded Russia from participation in the world's affairs, and Russia's wheat crops are being shorted.

Our own crop will be short of expectations. Shipping is limited, and ocean rates are high. Argentina's wheat is dear. The war is responsible for the cost of bread.

The effects of the war upon the machinery of civilization, upon transportation and the means of exchange are as appalling as its bedeviling effects on men's minds. Submarines, millions of European farmers, artisans,
and other producers of necessities were killed or disabled. The stock of material goods was destroyed or used up in incalculable amounts. Production is not going on in anything like the old pre-war manner.

In brief, the world is woefully short of the necessities of life, and the limited supply is being manipulated to their own profit by unscrupulous men.

Prices cannot go back where they belong until supply equals or exceeds demand again, but vigorous administrators may help us by choking off the profiteers.

Our great ultimate solution lies in vast new production of things to eat, wear, and use in daily life. The war which would curb or limit or hamper production is an enemy of society.

WAR MOTHERS AND BONUSES.

The War Mothers—the blue star and gold star mothers—who underwent sacrifices during the war peculiar only to themselves, are now throwing their organized strength in favor of the state bonus for the sons and daughters of Wisconsin who served their country.

The War Mothers of Wisconsin
have issued the following appeal:
"Whereas, Many of these men who stayed at home in safety during the world war benefited financially by high wages and returning service men are at a disadvantage;

"Whereas, Though no sum of money can adequately recompense the nurses and service men, any fair-minded person acknowledges that they deserve at least $10 a month bonus as a slight token of appreciation, to help them re-establish themselves in the community and to maintain their faith in those for whom they sacrificed;

"Whereas, the burden of taxes will be light compared to the levy that would have been imposed had we not won the war, or compared to the tax necessary if the war had continued, and will be as nothing compared to the debt that we owe to our fighting men;

"We, the Milwaukee chapter of the War Mothers, who gave our sons in service believing that the greatest tribute to the heroic dead is to do justice to their surviving comrades, do earnestly appeal to the citizens of Wisconsin, all of whom are enjoying the peace and prosperity so dearly bought by our sons, to partially redeem the general fair promises made to our sons, by granting them $10 a month bonus for each month of military duty. We beseech that their hopes which have been raised, be not disappointed. We do not want our sons to fight over there for us, and be compelled to fight for their rights
at home."

ANDREW CARNEGIE.

In the death of Andrew Carnegie
this country has lost a man of billionaire wealth, a man of the people.
The multi-millionaire steel magnate, and philanthropist, was a man of the world, not of class. He gathered in his wealth furthering the steel industry. He felt an obligation to the public. He turned his coin back into the paths from which it had come.

A public benefactor, his memory will sustain the spirit of helpfulness for one's fellowman in the less fortunate rank. Carnegie medals for acts of heroism and public libraries endowed through Carnegie funds stand in the majority of localities in this country as memorials to the philanthropic distributor of individual wealth. Reports of his benefactions show that he gave away $350,695,693
up to June 1, 1918.

The Prince of Wales is an American soil. He is officially returning President Wilson's visit with the royal family in England a few months ago, when he was invited by the Wilsons to "drop in and see us sometime." Now the White House people are wondering where they can find enough spare rooms to supply all the members of the prince's retinue. The young prince, the democratic royal hero of the soldiers' ranks, has had an inspiring reputation spread broadcast before him in this country, which is apt to tax his real self.

Although President Wilson has been forced to "come across" with treaties and documents which heretofore he has tried to withhold from the United States senate, he still persists in his favorite pursuit. He now refuses to shed any light on any of the steps in the Paris parleys.

Theatre managers who are forced by the actors' strike to assume the roles of the actors billed for their playhouses, may find out just how it seems to be confronted by a "cold house" and how "easy" a job it is to "get across the footlights."

And now comes Secretary Lansing, home from Paris, saying he was not permitted on the inside in the secret treaty between Japan and Great Britain concerning Shantung.

Travelette

Not long ago two Navajo Indians on the Navajo reservation in western New Mexico murdered a wealthy storekeeper, and burned his store to the ground.
They had long cherished a grudge against the man and an altercation with him ended in a fight. An Indian does not know how to fight with his fists. He fights with weapons and to kill.

When they realized what they had done, the two Indians burned down the store to conceal their crime. They were both young men and had borne good characters.

The body of the storekeeper did not burn; the crime was discovered; and a posse took the trail of the two Indians. They retired to the ruggedest part of a mountain range which had been a refuge of their tribe for centuries. They sent word back to the posse that they were well armed and that they would not be taken alive.

The posse went back for reinforcements and for more ammunition. It returned to the attack swollen to the size of a small army by many excited volunteers. On their way to the mountains, the posse met two old Navajos who had been sent out by the chief of the tribe.
"If you will go home," said the Indians to the white men, "we will bring you the two young men for trial."

There was a good deal of difference of opinion among the members of the posse, but they finally decided to give the Indians a chance.

The two old men went straight to the hiding place of the murderers as though guided by some occult knowledge.

They hailed the young men from a distance. The chief bids you come in and stand trial because otherwise the tribe will suffer for your lack was the substance of what they said.

There was no argument and no questions were asked. The young men followed the old ones back to town and were turned over to the sheriff.
They were hanged.

And the arrogant voice of displeasure

Don't snarl at the stranger who

The boy that comes into your office

And he shall remember your manner

And know from the tone of your

Talk in the language of friendship,

Be patient with youth that is trying.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am eighteen years old. Don't you think I am old enough to go with the boys? My reason for wanting to is to find out how I can become more popular with the boys. They don't seem to like me, although I try to do as other girls do.

Exercise is a very good cure for self-consciousness. Interest yourself in sports and you will forget yourself in the interest of the game you are playing.

Of course you must be careful of your appearance. Dress as neatly and daintily as you can. If your appearance is tempting there is more chance that you will be well-liked. Some girls of your age are silly. They giggle a lot and simper. This is not one of your failings, I presume, because you seem to take yourself and everything else so seriously.

As for going on the stage, it is possible to live that life morally, but unless a girl has a strong character she has little chance of coming out of it without giving up the idea of becoming a movie actress. If I were you, there are many other professions which are safer.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) A short time ago I became acquainted with a young man, three years my senior. On the second night he called upon me he kissed me against my wish. Do you think that was proper?

(2) I am nearly eighteen years of age. He has asked me for an engagement for next Saturday night. I am going right by allowing him to come?

(3) There is a girl friend in our town and one of my girl friends and I have never been there. Do you think that the boys would think we were chasing them if we went over and looked it over? We have been out with the boys several times.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Would it be proper for a mixed crowd to go to a beach and spend the day? The chaperons would be a couple who have been married but a week.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please tell me what will remove tan from neck and arms?

OPEN EYELETS IN SERGE FROCK ARE NOVEL IN EFFECT

With a sigh of relief the well-dressed woman greets the news that one-piece frocks will be in vogue again this fall. Three years is a long time to resist the almost inevitable seasonal changes.

The new one-piece frock is a novel creation, puts its embroidery on the left side of the skirt and all over the front of the blouse-like bodice. The new thing about it which no one but Lady Duff Gordon would attempt is the use of a cherry satin foundation which shows up plainly through the open eyelets in a light of navy blue French serge with a tight-fitting blouse and snug sleeves and a long light skirt with a belt of draping at the hip line on one side only. One-sided trimming and drapery is a style feature which is noticeable on all the new frocks whether for street, afternoon or evening wear.

FALSELY ARRESTED
"For the love of Moses," yelled King Solomon who was trying to hold on his inspiration long enough to utter a poem entitled "I Have a Thousand Wives to Give." "And by the thousands of the prophets," he roared, "I will not let you go until you have a word to rhyme with Adam's rib!" "Who is chief perfume to the Queen?" "But your wisdom," began Hiccup, the cup-bearer. These were his last words for with a mighty aim, the King sent the stone ball containing the laws into his open countenance.

Thus putting Case No. 1 in Common Pleas Court No. 7 out of business, the King called for Case No. 2. "Well, what are you brought up here for, huh?" he asked. The man addressed was muddled in a brown swooning of wool. One of the folds falling over his face gave him a shady look.

At 95 He Drives Auto and Harvests His Grain

Noblesville, Ind.—Clark Millikan, who lives in the northwestern part of Hamilton county, came to Noblesville the other day, purchased an automobile and drove it home. Nothing extraordinary, except that he's probably the oldest man in the country who has a motor car. He is 95 years old and is in the best of health. During wheat harvest he cut with a sickle and bound 20 shocks of grain. Last spring he had 15 acres of corn and set out 700 sweet potato plants.

And when I priced it, I could hardly wait to see you to tell you about it." Sweet of her, wasn't it? And character, too. Not of her, but of the average person who falls upon such an interesting tidbit.

Once when I was a small child there was a wonderful procession that I wanted very much to see. All the children I knew were going. But we had no invitation from those with windows on the line of the parade, and as there was such a violent snow-judge to crowds in our family (the adult part of it) that the idea that we might see it from the street with some tens of thousands of other people was not entertained. I had to go it up. The next day we were in town and met our milliner. She spoke of the parade and then asked us if we had seen it. "What a pity," she lamented at our negative reply. "Why you might just as well have seen it from our windows. We had a lovely view—we're right on the corner and we had room for half a dozen more people." "What a shame," I didn't know.

Brothers Living in Same Town Meet After 49 Years

[AN INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Tulsa, Okla.—This other day D. F. Park agreed to answer the telephone calls for his sons, who are in the baggage business, as they had to be out on engagements. The sons have a booth near the station platform, and down the street he approached the stranger and said: "Do you mind, tell me where you came from?" "Not in the least—I am from Missouri," said the stranger with a smile. "What part?" said Mr. Park. "I, too, am a Missourian." "I came from Crawford county," said the other old man. "And so did I," shouted Mr. Park. After a little more conversation they developed that they were brothers who parted 49 years ago. No word had passed between D. F. Park and his brother Samuel, now 86, since they left Crawford county. It later developed that Samuel has been living in Tulsa for three years and D. F. for 11 years. They are the only surviving brothers of a family of nine.

A CHANCE TO LIVE

DELIIRIUM.

She opened his eyes. He looked at her. "Come down, let's get your clothes off. You'll be much more comfortable in bed."

"All right," he said. "See that those boxes are marked, 'Will you be good to St. Louis? I should have gone long ago. Where the devils that boy with the stencil?'"

Annie pressed her hand to her trembling mouth. She had known illness. Her poor daddy had gone through a long, long time. Her mother had been half insane for years. But this was her first experience with delirium. It struck her with uncanny, indescribable fear.

Next morning, after a night of fever and restlessness, Annie was worse. Annie had not slept. Her nerves were on edge. Dr. Byrne came, looked at Annie with pursed lips, pushed his hands back to his pulse and took his temperature. "Hospital's best," he said to Annie in a conclusive tone.

The very word "hospital" struck fear into her, as it does to most nervous folk. Her forgotten incidents of her childhood flashed to her mind. Her father had been taken to a hospital. The little child in the next house, who had been run over by a car in the street, had gone to the hospital and never came back. The old woman from the flat upstairs had returned from the hospital with a rowing tale of woe. Along with the "charities" and the "children's society," the "hospital" is a terror to the average poor. Is it prejudice? Why should the prejudice exist? "Hospital" is a word that has vast experience to teach them. The hospital ward of the poor is not the hospital private room of the well-to-do. Nevertheless they go to it and many of them come back.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

OLD ROOTS AND NEW FILLINGS
The filling of a root canal affords an excellent opportunity of judging a dentist's ability. The old, and goodness knows how harmful way, was to open the canal and drill or clean it out until the very apex, or extremity, seemed reached. This systematic trouble, in the old days, was a mere result of the changeable weather or something.

The modern method of filling a root canal is the same as far as the word "canal" is concerned. He knows because he has a look-see at various stages of the work. He inserts a diagnostic wire when he seems to have reached the apex of the canal, then takes an X-ray look-see, to determine whether what seems is. If the picture shows the wire has reached the apex, the dentist knows where he is at; he now proceeds to fill the canal with gutta-percha. Then another look-see with the X-ray, this picture to determine whether the filling is exactly to the very extremity of the canal, as it seemed to do. If not, it must be removed and another filling put in, and another picture made. This process must be followed until the dentist is certain that the filling has completely filled the root canal and closed the opening in the tip of the root without projecting above the exterior of the opening. Otherwise the patient is going to have trouble in the future, not necessarily any local pain.

or soreness, but some consequence of a septic focus in the jaw. Thus the best dentist is absolutely impossible without checking by X-ray pictures. If modern treatment is not available for a tooth with infected root, the best alternative is extraction.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
The Symptoms of Chronic Appendicitis.
Please tell me the main symptoms of chronic appendicitis. Can you have chronic appendicitis without any acute attacks? (C. C. A.)
ANSWER: Chronic appendicitis often occurs in person after person, and is not a disease, but a condition. There are no very characteristic symptoms, though constipation and abdominal tenderness, and "stomach trouble" are common in this disease. The old and modern methods of overeating with what is called habit chole, he had a twitching of nerves, but is now much worse and his eyes roll around. He is irritable and hard to please. Did you think he can be cured? (Mrs. A. W. G.)
ANSWER: Perhaps the most satisfactory treatment for such a condition consists of a carefully supervised course of exercises, including inhibition of the bowels, which cut and applied notably in this country by Dr. W. J. A. Maloney of New York City and his followers.

Can any harm come from the continued use of an electric vibrator? I use one up and down my spine and over the abdomen once or twice a day, and it seems to stimulate the bowels. I am perfectly healthy, but my occupation (merchandise) prevents me from doing the proper amount of outdoor exercise. (R. H. P.)
ANSWER: No harm can come of it, but even indoor exercise is far better. Any man has time enough for exercise.

UNNECESSARY MIGHT-HAVE-BEENS.
When you hear of a pleasure, a bargain or an opportunity of any sort which someone has missed, what do you do? Do you rush and tell him about it?

It cost more than I wanted to pay but finally in a moment of extravagance, I ordered it. It was to be finished in wait three weeks, so I had the double satisfaction of having spent more money than I should have and of having no fascinating new possession to comfort me for my extravagance."

The Magnificent Ambersons

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Co. Fanny was too eager and, opening the door before he reached it, came quickly in, and closed it behind her. Her look was that of a person who had just seen something extraordinary or heard thrilling news.

"Now, what on earth do you want?" her chilling nephew demanded.

"George," she said hurriedly, "I saw what you did when you couldn't speak to them. I was sitting with Mrs. Johnson at her front window, across the street, and I saw it all."

"Well, what of it?"

"You did right!" Fanny said with a vehemence not the less spirited because she suppressed her voice almost to a whisper. "You did exactly right! You're behaving splendidly about the whole thing, and I want to tell you I know your father would thank you if he could see what you're doing."

"My Lord!" George broke out at her. "You make me dizzy! For heaven's sake quit the mysterious detective business—at least do quit it around me! Go and try it on somebody else, if you like; but I don't want to hear it!"

She began to tremble, regarding him with a fixed gaze. "You don't care to hear, then," she said huskily, "that I approve of what you're doing?"

"Certainly not!" Since I haven't the faintest idea what you think I'm doing," naturally I don't care whether you approve of it or not. All I'd like, if you please, is to be alone. I'm not giving a tea here, this afternoon, if you'll permit me to mention it!"

Fanny's gaze wavered; she began to blink; then suddenly she sank into a chair and wept silently, but with a terrible desolation.

"Oh, for the Lord's sake!" he moaned. "What in the world is wrong with you?"

"You're always picking on me!" she quavered wretchedly, her voice indistinct with the wetness that bubbled in it from her tears. "You do—you always pick on me! You've always done it—always—ever since you were a little boy! Whenever anything goes wrong with you, you take it out on me! You do! You always—"

George flung to heaven a gesture of despair; it seemed to him the last straw that Fanny should have chosen this particular time to come and sob in his room over his mistreatment of her!

"Oh, my Lord!" he whispered; then, with a great effort, addressed her in a reasonable tone: "Look here, Aunt Fanny, I don't see what you're making all this fuss about. Of course I know I've teased you sometimes, but—"

"Teased me?" she, wailed.

"Teased me! Oh, it does seem too hard sometimes—this mean old life of mine does seem too hard! I don't think I can stand it! Honestly, I don't think I can! I came in here just to show you I sympathized with you—just to say something pleasant to you, and you treat me as if I were—oh, no, you wouldn't treat a servant the way you treat me! You wouldn't treat anybody in the world like this except old Fanny!"

"Oh, my Lord!" George groaned.

Fanny spread out her small, soaked handkerchief, and shook it in the air to dry it a little, crying as dully and as wretchedly during this operation as before—a sight which gave George a curious shock to add to his other agitations. It seemed so strange.

"You're so proud," she quavered, "and so hard! I tell you I didn't mean to speak of it to you, and I never, never in the world have made the faintest reference to it, if I hadn't seen that somebody else had told you, or you'd found out for yourself some way."

In despair of her intelligence, and in some doubt of his own, George struck the palms of his hands together: "Somebody else had told me what? I'd found out for myself?"

"How people are talking about your mother."

Except for the incidental tenderness of her voice, her tone was casual, as though she mentioned a subject previously discussed and understood; for Fanny had no doubt that George had only pretended to be mystified because, in his pride, he would not in words admit that he knew what he knew.

"What did you say?" he asked incredulously.

"Of course I understood what you were doing," Fanny went on, drying her handkerchief again. "It puzzled other people when you began to be rude to Eugene, because they couldn't see how you could treat him as you did when you were so interested in Lucy. But I remembered how you came to me, that other time when there was so much talk about Isabel; and I knew you'd give Lucy up in a minute, if it came to a question of your mother's reputation, because you said then that—"

"Look here," George interrupted in a shaking voice. "Look here, I'd like—"

He stopped; unable to go on, his agitation was so great. His chest heaved as from hard running, and his complexion, pallid at first, had become mottled; fiery spots appearing at his temples and cheeks. "What do you mean by telling me—telling me there's talk about—about—"

He gulped, and began again: "What do you mean by using such words as 'reputation'? What do you mean, speaking of a 'question' of my—my mother's reputation?"

Fanny looked up at him woefully over the handkerchief which she now applied to her reddened nose. "God knows I am sorry for you, George," she murmured. "I wanted to say so, but it's only old Fanny, so whatever she says—even when it's sympathy—pick on her for it!" She sobbed. "It's only poor old lonely Fanny!"

"You look here!" George said harshly. "When I spoke to my Uncle George after that rotten thing I heard Aunt Amelia say about my mother, he said if there was any gossip it was about you! He said people might be laughing about the way you ran after Morgan, but that was all!"

Fanny lifted her hands, clenched them and struck them upon her knees. "Yes; it's always Fanny!" she sobbed. "Ridiculous old Fanny—always, always!"

"You listen!" George said. "After I'd talked to Uncle George I saw you; and you said I had a mean little mind for thinking there might be truth in what Aunt Amelia said about people talking. You denied it. And, that wasn't the only time; you'd attacked me before then, because I intimated that Morgan might be coming here too often. You made me believe that mother let him come entirely on your account, and now you say—"

"I think he did," Fanny interrupted desolately. "I think he did come as much to see me as anything—for a while it looked like it. He did act a good deal that way—and if Wilbur hadn't died—"

"You told me there wasn't any talk!"

"I didn't think there was much, then," Fanny protested. "I didn't know how much there was."

"What!"

"People don't come and tell such things to a person's family, you know. You don't suppose anybody was going to say to George Amberson that his sister was getting herself talked about, do you? Or that they were going to say much to me?"

"You told me," said George, fiercely, "that mother never saw him except when she was chaperoning you."

"They weren't much alike together, then," Fanny returned. "Hardly ever, before Wilbur died. Everybody knew that he'd been engaged to her."

"What's that?" George cried.

"Everybody knows it. Don't you remember?"

He quit Cigarettes

A wonderful relief from slavery to cigarettes is reported by Chas. Oleson, who had been addicted 14 years, and after trying various so-called cures in vain found just the information he wanted in a book published and sent free to anybody by Edward J. Woods, T.C.-81, Station 6, New York.

Thousands of persons, both men and women, who were addicted to cigarettes, pipe, chewing, snuff, etc., have been freed from this habit, and are now enjoying better health, calm nerves, peaceful sleep, improved eyesight, stronger heart, increased vitality, power, clear brain, LONGER LIFE, greater earning efficiency, contentment and other benefits. Just try it. Surprise everybody by awakening your latent superior ability. Show others this advertisement.

According to a noted French Scientist, the most effective remedy for nervousness, insomnia and ailments due to depleted nerve force, is a form of organic phosphate known among druggists in this country as Bitro-Phosphate.

It is described as a substance which is similar in composition to the phosphorus naturally found in brain and nerve cells and, being easily and quickly assimilated, it creates a new nerve force, strength and vigor being immediately it is taken into the human system.

There are many reports of astonishing results from its use, some showing remarkable improvement in stubborn cases of long standing nerve weakness. As there are many kinds of phosphates, care should be exercised to procure the genuine Bitro-Phosphate as sold by the Smith Drug Co. in Jamesville, and all good druggists.

Nothing like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Strengthen Weak Nerves and Increase Strength and Vigor.

member your grandfather sneaking off at the Sunday dinner one night?

"He didn't say they were engaged or—"

"Well, they were! Everybody knows it; and she broke it off on account of that serenade when Eugene didn't know what he was doing. He drank when he was a young man, and she wouldn't stand for it, but everybody in this town knows that Isabel has never really cared for any other man in her life! Poor Wilbur! He was the only soul alive that didn't know it!"

Nightmare had descended upon the unfortunate George; he leaned back against the footboard of his bed, gazing wildly at his aunt. "I believe I'm going crazy," he said. "You mean when you told me there wasn't any talk, you told me a falsehood?"

"No!" Fanny gasped.

"You did!"

"I tell you I didn't know how much talk there was, and I wouldn't have amounted to much if Wilbur had lived." And Fanny completed this with a fatal admission: "I didn't want you to interfere."

George overlooked the admission; his mind was not now occupied with analysis. "What do you mean," he asked, "when you say that if father had lived, the talk wouldn't have amounted to anything?"

"Things might have been—they might have been different."

"You mean Morgan might have married you?"

Fanny gulped. "No. Because I don't know that I'd have accepted him." She had ceased to weep, and now she sat up stiffly. "I certainly didn't care enough about him to marry him; I wouldn't have let myself care that much until he showed that he wished to marry me. I'm not that sort of person!" The poor lady paid her vanity this piteous little tribute. "What I mean is, if Wilbur hadn't died before their very eyes that what they'd been talking about was true!"

THE WISHING PLANE

The children went to visit Edinburgh castle early in the day—on a member we left them in Edinburgh yesterday. The great castle sets high on a hill and the little folks had a wonderful view of the city from the towers.

Jack and Jane had seen castles before, but this one was larger than any they had visited and they noticed something different about it. All around the outside of the stone building was a very deep ditch, too wide for anybody to jump across. The only way of getting into the castle was over a bridge—a draw-bridge, Captain Brave called it. Then he told the children how the ditch was kept filled with water in the olden times. The Next the children went to Aberdeen. The children quickly found out why Aberdeen is called the "Granite City." There are hundreds of granite quarries—which are about the same as mines—near Aberdeen and the city is built mostly of the pretty stone-like blocks.

It took Captain Brave only a couple of minutes to whisk the children from that city to Balmoral castle, the place where the beloved Queen Victoria of England spent many pleasant summer hours. Lady Brave told the children all about the queen who ruled so kindly and graciously.

The ship yards at Glasgow, Scotland's great seaport, visited next, amazed the children. The great city is located on the River Clyde. The huge harbor has been dug out so that ocean liners and all types of big boats can enter it and unload their passengers easily. There is much iron and coal in the land around Glasgow and it takes a great number of ships to carry these products away. Big manufacturing plants turn out goods for all parts of the world, too, so you can see how important the harbor is to the city.

MANITOWOC HERE SUNDAY

LAKE CITY BUNCH NOW IN SECOND POSITION

Janesville will meet the speeding Manitowoc aggregation at the fair grounds next Sunday in the second game of the Lake Shore league for the local nine, according to a wire received by the Gazette today from Manager J. A. Murphy of the Lawrence J. team, who is in Milwaukee on league business. The Manitowocs, headed by big Chief Jack Herzog, are holding down second position in the league, having been pushed off their top perch by Sheboygan. Sunday, in a special game at the Lake City, 12 to 11, local fans who got their first taste of Lake Shore league baseball are growing thirsty for another such exhibition. All are agreed that last Sunday's game was the best seen on the home lot this year. Beyond all doubt next Sunday's battle with the Manitowoc clan will be a corker even surpassing that Milwaukee game.

Heavy Expense

In bringing the Manitowoc club here, Manager Murphy is doing so at a heavy expense and his appeal to fans for whole-hearted support is worthy of consideration. He has tried and succeeded in giving to Janesville the best baseball it has had in years. Now that the city has a place in the fastest league in the state and a chance to cop the pennant, every single fan in the city should get on the job.

Janesville is now in third place in the league, Manitowoc being only a game and a half ahead. A victory Sunday will put Janesville only a half-game behind with a chance to hop in to second place and possibly first on the following Sunday.

BY JACK KEENE.

"Be fair to my boy Harry." This is the appeal of Mrs. Celia Dempsey, mother of William Harrison Dempsey of Salt Lake, and now better known as "Harry Dempsey," world's heavyweight champion.

In the house purchased for his mother from his first winnings—long before he became champion—he is spoken of proudly as "my boy Harry."

Mrs. Dempsey is eager to deny the stories that Harry was a hobo before fortune smiled.

"I wish the papers would be more fair to my son," she said. "You know it is neither right nor fair to say he had been a hobo. He never was a hobo."

Frank Chance was the first baseball man to predict the managerial success of Patrick Moran, who threatened to lead the National league pennant with the Reds. Chance, when he handled the Cubs, had Moran and Tom Needham, both catchers, on his team. Later, when Chance took hold of the Yankees in 1913, he vainly tried to obtain Moran as a coach. Moran was helping Charley Dooin, manager of the Phillies, at that time, and the Quaker owners refused to let Pat go.

"Moran will be a great manager some day," said Chance when the Phillies had turned down his offer. "He knows baseball, is a hard worker and is well liked by the players, because he is fair and square. Needham, too, will make good in the big leagues if he gets an opportunity."

Needless to add that Chance still is pulling for Moran, and also is wondering why Needham is idle.

Fight promoters have long been adept at "handing out the old oil," but now it seems they are beginning to change their tactics and are gathering it in.

Tex Rickard, Harry (Pollock), Dan McKittrick and John Reiser are some of the more prominent ones who have turned from the promotion of boxing shoes to the promotion of oil wells.

Of these, the most recent and by far the most picturesque is Reiser. His has been the most spectacular career as an oil magnate.

Less than a year ago Reiser, who had made a fortune, found himself practically penniless, heavily in debt and with no prospects. A friend who had gone to Oklahoma and struck it rich prevailed upon John to go to the oil fields and look things over. Reiser went, and through the aid of his friend he also "struck it rich" and in less than six months recouped his lost fortune.

Today he is a director in two prosperous corporations, and instead of "palling around" with prize-fighters, he is hobnobbing with millionaires.

When the Phillies pounded Leon Cadore for eight innings and four runs in the eighth, they brought to an end the pitcher's winning spurt. Cadore had won five games in succession. His victims were the Reds, Cardinals, Pirates, Braves and Phillies. When the winning spurt came very near ending, The right hander was taken out of the game to allow Mitchell to bat for him, and while the pinch hitter was at the plate a wild pitch scored a Robin from third with the run that tied the score. Sherrod Smith succeeded Cadore on the slab and the Reds were defeated.

A Modern House

The early settlers did not have the comforts of the present day; their houses were often makeshifts—convenience and luxury of the modern house were unknown to them; they often suffered from the cold. The Pioneer never knew the delights of a really perfect fuel, for it is only within the last few years that inventive genius has perfected the process for its manufacture. The modern fuel, for the modern house—the ideal fuel for heating and cooking is:

It may be burned in any stove or furnace that is suitable for hard coal and with better results. It does not burn out grates and fire pots. The house where MILWAUKEE SOLVAY COKE is used may be kept clean and wholesome with but little effort, which is a point worth the consideration of the modern household.

By all means buy your fuel now!
